Physical Therapist Assistant

Why Become a Physical Therapist Assistant (PTA)?

- ➊ Massive demand for PTAs due to aging of the population and increase in high risk occupations
- ➋ Tons of options available in terms of area of practice, job location, and timings
- ➌ Work in various health care environments such as hospitals, rehabilitation centers, nursing clinics, private practices, with sports teams, etc.
- ➍ It is highly rewarding to directly impact the health of a patient by giving them back independence, mobility, and quality of life
- ➎ PTAs have great earning potential
- ➏ It is a challenging, high paced job that encourages physicality and keeps PTAs engaged, fit, and social

PTA Program Details at CBD College

The PTA program at CBD College is designed to prepare students for a career in physical therapy. Students will learn anatomy and physiology, kinesiology, physical therapy procedures, pediatric, adult, and geriatric principals, neurological, sports injuries, and orthopedics techniques, documentation principals and skills, interpersonal communications skills, modalities and electric stimulation, rehabilitation principals, personal and professional ethics, and integumentary and wound care principals. Clinical experience and direct patient contact occurs in the last module of the program.

The program is divided into five modules. General education courses occur in the first module and PTA core classes are covered in the other four modules. The first clinical experience is in module #4 for two weeks and module #5 is entirely clinical practical experience. Students will be under the supervision of a PT professional during clinical rotations.
